THE SHELBY PRES (S)

Published monthly by Shelby Presbyterian Church

Sisters and Brothers in Christ,

Years ago, my wife and I frequented a restaurant that had no menu, one chef, only an occasional waiter, sporadic hours, and only a handful of seats. It was hardly the model for a successful restaurant. We loved it.

That occasional waiter would say, “We may not be fast, but we are slow,” and this made room for unparalleled hospitality in a kitchen, where the chef made adventurous dishes inspired by local produce and their world travels. She made your meal to order and sold some of the best baked goods I’ve ever tasted (oh, the Challah). You could come in, make some tea, hear a story about the food being prepared, and be a part of the family.

Last month, at the officer retreat, the theme for your elders and deacons was to “focus on our strengths.” We drew on Romans 12, where the Apostle Paul says we have many gifts, given to us by grace, encouraging us to do what we are gifted to do.

Unfortunately, insecurities often cause us to compare ourselves to others, or fixate on our weaknesses and the weaknesses of others. We fail to recognize and use gifts already given to us by the grace of God. When others excel, we judge ourselves for falling short. Likewise, we judge those struggling with something we have conquered.

Judgmental comparison is part of what it means to be conformed to this age. If we are to be transformed, we must offer ourselves to God, not by being perfect, but by being humble enough to contribute from what God has given us. This is true worship.

The restaurant fell short in many categories we use to judge restaurants. Likewise, each of us falls short being a “good Christian.” However, just as the restaurant leaned into its home-like atmosphere and storytelling, God has given you gifts. Rather than focusing on sins and shortcomings, striving to be perfect, we are called to recognize God’s grace and love for us and do more with our gifts. This is not a license to sin, but an opportunity to crowd sin out through our relationship with God and one another.

The skills and talents of our church members have already established this church in its work to reconcile the world to God in Christ. Yet, some of you are not yet fully engaged in service to the church. This may be because no existing ministry fits your strengths, or because no one has recommended your strengths for an existing ministry.

If you have an idea, please share it with me, or another elder or deacon. If you see a gift in someone else, please be sure to encourage them and refer them to me, or another elder or deacon to be part of an existing ministry. Together, we can build on what God has given us and live into our calling in the ministry of reconciliation.

From the Desk of Carol Ann

I am a collector. Some may say hoarder but I prefer collector. I'm a collector of many things but the area where things collect in my house is my bathroom. When I come home from a trip, the bag goes in the middle of the floor begging to be unpacked and the collecting starts. Bag after bag....

My high school friend Leslie, a real estate agent, is total opposite of me. NEAT freak and throws everything away. She wanted to use me as an example. If listing your house, one must get it ready to sell. We talk all the time about my bathroom and how I want to be organized but I have too much stuff in there and it drives Joel crazy. She brought her team in with cameras and containers and WE went to work on my bathroom. She was teaching her crew how to stage a space but she was freeing me of the weight of my collections. We emptied every bag, drawer, cabinet and she helped me purge the things out of date, the bottles I was going to refill, the 5 billion cotton balls and the 50 zillion containers of miracle cream. Really, who needs 12 unused containers of deodorant? We worked for 8 hours and it was done. The room that caused me so much anxiety was now a sanctuary of peace for me. Everything in the bathroom now serves a purpose. Things are not just taking up space. My bathroom is not the only thing in need of a good cleaning. Often my heart also requires some purging.

We must be in the habit of looking deep into ourselves to rid our hearts of any thoughts, habits, or feelings that are making us dingy and dull: envy, jealousy, hatred, discontentment, impatience, unkindness, or revenge. When these things reside in our hearts, we are not making room for the things that matter. Love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, faithfulness, gentleness, goodness and self-control.

It is not time for spring cleaning but it is always time to purge.

- Carol Ann

Happy Retirement Amy & Tricia!

Thank you again for all your years of service.
 Amy Allen, Music Director for 29 years
 Tricia Butler, Nursery Director for 9 years

To my SPC Church Family:

Thank you for the reception, the prayer shawl and the beautiful figurine. Thank you for your support. Thank you for finding replacements. I can step down knowing the nursery is in good hands!

It's been quite a journey, Rainbow teacher, Sunday School teacher and then nursery! I had communion on Christmas morning and my tears flowed - it had been so long, I was overcome. Now, let's see where God leads me in my SPC journey.

Blessings to all,
 Tricia Butler

What's Cooking?

The Food Ministry is busy on Mondays giving away food at 11:00 and serving hot lunch at 11:45. The new gas range works like a charm. The big refrigerator/freezer died, but we were rescued with the donation of an upright freezer which will serve until more appliances are updated. We have organized and labelled cabinets and drawers to make the kitchen more user-friendly for all. When you do use the kitchen, please leave it as you found it. Wash and put away whatever you use, and label anything that you put in the fridge with name and date. We covet your prayers and thank you for the opportunity to share God's love and yours with the community.
